You arrive on campus, and you immediately realize something _____ (1) is going on. You see a circle forming in front of Café M, so you _____ (2) your way to the center where you witness the most _____ (3) spectacle you've ever laid your _____ (4) on. Sally the Mustang's body is "lying on the cold, hard _____ (5)" à la Taylor Swift in an overly dramatic music video, and her head is nowhere to be found. Recalling the First Aid you learned in _____ (6), you remember if Sally's body is separated from her head, she might as well be presumed _____ (7). The chaos builds amongst the student body, so you decide to take this mystery into your own _____ (8) From all your time spent watching _____ (9), you have the perfect tools needed to solve this mystery.

You bend down and, realizing the body is still _____ (10), deduce that the crime must have happened this morning. You collect a witness account from the principal, who describes a masked hooligan running around the _____ (11) with a concealed bundle under his/her arm. You know the only person who can help you with this job is _____ (12), who is the best of the best when it comes to _____ (13) solving _____ (14). Together you search in _____ (15) and along the hallways for clues. After hours of fruitless work, as _____ (12 again) is ready to give up, you spot a purple bow beside _____ (16). Your teacher sidekick asks in amazement, "How on earth did you see that?!" and you _____ (17) respond, "_____ (18) my dear Watson." The bow is unfurled leaving a trail of purple thread snaking around the School. Oh, these School criminals are so _____ (19), you think to yourself. You follow the thread up the stairs, turn the corner, and open the door to _____ (20), where you find _____ (21) shoving Sally's head into a _____ (22). Shocked, you call Wagner, who decides that the criminal must wear a sign around his/her neck reading: "I'm a _____ (23) because I _____ (24) Sally" for the next _____ (25) years as punishment. You restore Sally to her rightful _____ (26) and, thanks to you, your school lived happily ever _____ (27).
